For our Final Project, we will be building an informational website about the Interactive Media Design program. The intended audience for the website will be students and anyone who is inquiring about the program. The site that we build will provide a program overview, a class schedule for all sections in the current semester, detailed page describing each course, the topics covered, the professor, the grading. It will also include a detailed page describing each professor, their contact information and the courses taught.

The three professors that we are choosing are Katie Tremblay, Michael Alan Eisenbraun and SuCheng Lee. The three courses in the program that we have decided to provide a detailed overview about are Design Foundations, Server-Side Web Development and User Experience Design.

The team will work together to do research and gather content, design a mockup and style guide, with visuals. We will then divide the coding between the team.

The team consists of five team members and in order for us to keep in touch we will use WhatsApp Messenger to keep regular communication outside of class. We will create a group chat within WhatsApp in order to maintain contact and we will also use GitHub discussions. We will create a google docs document to transfer or edit and text documents. We will meet every Monday from 4:00pm to 5:00pm.
